FIERCE BLAZE IN FERTILIZER PLANT

Burning of Bryant's Factory Yesterday Afternoon Spectacular.

FIRE WAS CONFINED.

Thousands of People Witness Ineffectual Efforts of Firemen to Check Conflagration.

The sudden bursting out of a fire about half-past two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the fertilizer works of Herbert Bryant's Son, conducted by Arthur Bryant, on the northeast corner of Montgomery and Lee streets, caused considerable excitement and in a few moments several thousand persons had gathered in the vicinity. Huge volumes of black smoke ascended, and a roaring blaze was soon licking up everything in the way of combustibles which were in the structure.

The wind, which had been from the southwest during the early part of the day, veered to the west and became brisk, sending sparks and embers into the Potomac, but fortunately clear of the Old Dominion Glass Works and Augustus Dean's shipyard, the latter south of the burning building.

Considerable anxiety prevailed lest the wind would move to the northwest or north, in which event the glass works and the ship yard would have been menaced. At the latter place a tug boat was upon the ways and many motor boats were high and dry upon the ground. Had the fire reached the shipyard considerable valuable property would have been destroyed.

The wind, however, kept from the west, and although it was brisk, the smoke had a clear swee pto the river, which rendered it possible to confine the fire to the fertilizer plant.

The situation of the doomed building was such as to render it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the fire department to do any effectual service ,although every effort was made to extinguish the flames, which raged furiously about an hour.

The chemical engine from the town of Potomac was rushed to the scene, but those having it in charge found themselves practically impotent to check the progress of the conflagration, which was destined to burn itself out .

The fertilizer factory adjoined the plant of the Old Dominion Glass Company. Employes of that company kept a stream of water on the building and coal pile in order to save it from taking fire.

The Alexandria fire department, was, of course, on hand and rendered all aid possible, but, it, too was handicapped by reason of the distance of the main water plug to the fire and the difficulty experienced in running the hose to the scene. Besides the stream of water at their command was weak.

A box car belonging to the Southern Railway Company, loaded with nitrate of soda, which was on a side track and close to the burning structure, took fire and was practically destroyed.

The loss is estimated at $40,000, which is thought to be covered by insurance. The building will be restored as soon as possible. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Bryant Fertilizer Company, at the foot of Duke street suffered a serious loss by fire nearly seventeen years ago. In June, 1897, the works at the foot of Duke street took fire and the plant was practically eliminated. At that time the Pioneer Mills were destroyed and several other buildings in the neighborhood. In 1895 the buildings of the Alexandria Fertilizer and Chemical Company, at the foot of Princess street, met a similar fate.

Yesterday's fire was the second fierce conflagration which has occurred on the river front in a short time. In September, 1912, the Globe Mills, an old Alexandria landmark, was totally destroyed.

A few weeks ago a fire of less magnitude wiped out two buildings on the fish wharf.

Another fire alarm was sounde about 9:30 o'clock last night which was caused by a blaze at the Alexandria Glass Works. The fire, of unknown origin, did $200 damage to a building used for the packing of paper at the plant. The loss is covered by insurance.

SUPERANNUATED EMPLOYEES.

Department Heads Expect to Agree on Retirement Scheme in a Few Days.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Plans are being considered by the President and his cabinet for the retirement of superannuated employees of the various government departments.

President Wilson admitted this today in his talk with callers.

From what he said it is obvious that the administration, while desirous of relieving the civil service of "dead wood," is tempered by a feeling that employes who have been faithful, should not be thrown on the world with no provision for their support.

Various suggestions have been laid before the President at Cabinet meetings but no definite scheme has been fixed upon.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield has devised a plan, which he has before the Cabinet, and a commission of the War Department, through Secretary Garrison, has presented another.

Congressman Hamil, of New Jersey, has in Congress a bill providing for a straight pension for such employes. Leaders in Congress, however, have indicated a nunwillingness to take the matter up until the White House has expressed its views.

From what the President told callers this morning an administration plan will be worked out shortly.

GROUND HOG SAW SHADOW.

And Accordins to Tradition We'll Have Forty Days of Rain And Cold.

Tradition tells an ancient tale of the ground hog and the weather, having it that if the little beast comes from his hole and sees his shadow today, he will return to his hibernation and forty days of rain, wind and storm will follow. The rodent saw his shadow this morning.

It is his custom every Candlemas Day to poke his damp nose out before noon and take a glance at the sky. If conditions look propitious, and he sees not his shadow, he'll chuckle to the madame and call her to gambol on the green. Otherwise it'll be forty days and nights before he'll venture out again. So people await his prophecy with some concern. But, as with men and their plans, the prephecies of the ground hog gang aft agley. He's not a stickler for the truth, and often the reverse of his foretelling comes true. But, still, people believe in him, as they believe that dogs sun spell bad weather, and rain and inverted half moon means rain. He is as strongly fortified in tradition as Gibraltar in the rocks, and his main purpose and use in his life are to tell the farmer whether the next forty days will be wintry or warm with the promise of spring. No sign of the Zodiac is more strongly entrenched in the faith of men than he, and a thousand plans of men and maids hinge on his actions today. A ground hog, which was lively and in good humor was on exhibition in a window in Alexandria today.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

The Woman's Auxiliary to R. E. Lee Camp will meet tomorrow evening at half-past seven o'clock in Lee Camp Hall. All members are urged to attend as business of importance is to be transacted.

CHURCH DAY IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Chicago went to church today in groups, columns, droves and multitudes. Best estimates place the number of attendants at service yesterday at 1,500,000 persons. The normal attendance is about one-third this figure. Actual figures are now being compiled, but the figures available show that this estimate is close to the actual mark.

MANY PERSONS IN RICHMOND TODAY

Inaugural Ceremonies Are Among Most Impressive Ever Witnessed.

MILITARY FEATURE.

Big Pageant Swings Out From Capitol With Commands in Line—Streets Packed With People.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—Thousands of visitors from the Southwest, Tidewater and other sections of the State attended the inauguration of Governor Henry C. Stuart at noon today. United States Senator Thos. S. Martin and Senator Claude A. Swanson, Congressman Montague and other members of the Virginia delegation were present. The weather was all that could be desired.

Nothing like it has been seen in Richmond since 1894, in Governor O'Ferrall's day. The flashing of guns and buckles, the blare of bugles and the martial tramp, the thunder of cannon, the proud review of Virginia's National Guard, and the ceremonial administering of the oath made Governor Stuart's inauguration different from anything that has gone before.

The inauguration was divided into two sections, one the exercises in the hall of the House of Delegates and the other the military parade and the ceremony on the portico. The parade and the exercises in the hall took place simultaneously.

The 1,200 troops in line, the parade began to assemble in Capitol square at 10:45 o'clock, each reporting to grand marshall Colonel R. F. Leedy upon arrival. At 11 o'clock Governor Mann rode out of the executive mansion grounds in an automobile with his military aide, Adjutant-General W. W. Sale, and the parade was set in motion. Behind the Governor's car was another in which Senator Edward Echols, chairman of the inaugural committee rode. Other machines conveyed the Governor's staff and the inaugural committee. The autos assumed position at the extreme rear of the parade, the Governor's car followed immediately on the heels of the cadet corps of the Virginia Military Institute.

Headed by Major Werner and a squad of mounted police, the parade proceeded out of the capitol square and west on Grace street to Fifth, where the line halted, while Governor Stuart and his military aide, Brigadier-General C. C. Vaughan, Jr., were escorted to places in the automobile with Governor Mann. Governor Stuart, together with Lieut-Governor Ellyson, awaited the arrival of the column at the home of Dr. George Ben Johnson, 405 East Grace street, The Lieut-Governor was escorted to a seat in Senator Echol's car.

The column then took up the march again, going south on Fifth street and east to Grace to the capitol.

While the parade was moving in the city streets less spectacular events were taking place within the capitol in the presence of a small company. The Senate and the House of Delegates assembled in separate session at 11:15 o'clock, meeting in joint session at the House at 11:30 o'clock. In the presence of the members of the General Assembly and distinguished visitors, the following state officers took the oath of office, five judges of Richmond courts officiating; A. W. Harman, Jr., state treasurer; B. O. Jones, secretary of the commonwealth; John Garland Pollard, attorney-general; George W. Koiner, commissioner of agriculture, and R. C. Stearnes, superintendent of public instruction.

On the conclusion of these brief exercises the legislators and guests occupied seats on the south portico of the capitol.

As the assembly from the House occupied seats on the portico, the troops in the parade formed into long lines reaching from Sixth street to the capitol, through which the Governor's party rode to the stands. On the portico the exercises proceeded in the following order:

Prayer by Bishop Collins Denny; administration of oath to Lieut-Governor Ellyson by Judge Richmond H. Cardwell, of the Supreme Court; administration of oath to Governor Stuart by Judge James Keith, president of the Supreme Court; delivery of Governor Stuart's inaugural address; benediction by Bishop Denny.

At the conclusion of the address, the big cannon of the Richmond Howitzers' battery crashed out a Governor's salute of nineteen guns. The waiting troops thereupon formed line and passed before the Governor's stand in military review. This concluded the public exercises and the new governor was formally conducted to the Executive Mansion by the inaugural committee. The public reception will be given in the mansion tonight between 9 and 11 o'clock. It is open to everybody.

STUART DELIVERS HIS INAUGURAL

New Governor Says He Is Not Candidate of Clique or Faction.

WITHOUT PLATFORM.

Devotes Large Portion of Address to Subject of Taxation Hoping For More Satisfactory Conditions.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—Governor Henry C. Stuart delivered his inaugural address at the Capitol today before an immense throng composed of representatives from all sections of the State. The address was comparatively brief. Among other things Governor Stuart said:

I enter upon the duties of the governorship with a deep sense of the generous consideration of my fellow-citizens. Called to the office by the unanimous voice of my own party, and without serious opposition from any source, I feel that, coupled with the honor, there is the fullest measure of obligation and responsibility.

The announcement of my candidacy contained this declaration: "I am not the candidate of any clique or faction, but ask the support of all Democrats who stand for good government in the paramount interest of the State." Having now taken the oath of office I promise that my course as Governor shall be controlled by the principles thus announced, and that in that spirit my strength and energy shall be steadily and earnestly devoted to the service of the State.

Nominated and elected without a platform having been promulgated by my party, and without any statement of my own views with respect to public questions, it now seems my duty to interpret as best I may the sentiment to which my election is the substantial expression, by some definite reference to the work which lies before us. So far as my participation in that work is concerned, I wish to say at the outset that I rely with confidence upon the other officials of the Executive Department, and particularly upon the wise and active operation of the General Assembly, to whose committees and members I shall frequently turn for consultation and advice.

The functions of government are misapplied unless there is produced approximate equality in the distribution of burdens and benefits. That no such equality is incident to our present system of taxation is perfectly obvious. Discriminations are flagrant and should be removed with as little delay as possible. The task is difficult, but it is not, for that reason, to be postponed or slighted.

The present rate of state taxation on all classes of property, real and personal, is equal and uniform, and existing discriminations must therefore arise from the non-assessment, or under-asssessment, or over-assessment of property. Accordingly, I think it is clear that the initial step in tax reform is to put under actual contribution every kind and description of property not exempt by law, and thus so broaden the base of taxation as that the common burden may rest lightly on all.

Real estate is assessed at intervals of five years by assessors appointed by the courts, many of the counties being divided into two or more assessment districts. Personal property is assessed every year by commissioners of the revenue elected by the people, and in some counties there are half w dozen or more districts, each having a commissioner There is no adequate provision for local equalization, and gross inequalities frequently obtain in the valuatoin of both realty and personalty in the different assessment districts of the same county. Likewise there is no provision for state equalization, and just as gross inequalities obtain affecting counties and cities, and the various sections in their relation to each other. All of this occasions no surprise, when it is considered that the duty of making the assessments is performed by hundreds of individual officials, who do not act in concert, and each of whom, as far as the last assessment of real estate is concerned, has no other guide than his own judgment as to what is a fair market value. The woeful lack of uniformity which prevails, with consequent widespread injustice and complaint, is inevitable under such a system.

For the purpose of remedying a system which is confessedly and glaringly defective, equalization is a fundamental necessity. The difficulties of equalization became more apparent when we consider carefully the facts to which the present inequality is largely due. A tax rate which is made abnormally high by the under assessment of visible property becomes unjust when it is applied to intansible property, which in most cases is asssessed at its par or face value, and in any case by easily ascertained standards of value. Under these conditions the owner of intangible property seeks relief from what he considers a disproportionate burden by failing or refusing to report his property for assessment and taxation. The owner of real estate and visible property accepts with complacency the benefits of underassessment of his own property, in the full knowledge that a large percentage of intangible property is not assessed at all. A just scheme of equalization must, therefore, deal at one and the same time with property under-assessed, and with property, the bulk of which is not assessed at all. On any other principle the process of equalization might, and almost certainly would, result in large increases in assessments of property that could not from its nature go into hiding, such as real estate, without bringing into contribution any fair proportion of intangible property, this aggravating, rather than relieving existing inequalities.

Assuming that a body could be created with powers sufficiently broad and comprehensive to deal justly with the situation as it is presented, I would suggest tentatively local boards of equalization for counties and cities, to insure uniformity of assessments in every such county or city for state and local taxation, and a State board of equalization, composed of a representtive of each grand division of the State, and charged with the supervision of all assessments made by the local boards, and given authority to equalize assessment values so as to prevent any inequality from which otherwise any section, county or city might suffer. The assessment of all property would be within the jurisdiction of these boards, except that belonging to the public-service corporations, which is assessed by the State Corporation Commission

There should be a modification of the present fee system applicable to cases where the fees now collected yield an amount in excess of a liberal compensation to the officers for the responsibility incurred and service performed by himself and by his necessary deputies and assistants. The excess, less a commission for its collection, should, of course, be paid into the treasury. No plan should be thought of which would threaten injustice to any class of officials of any individual of that class.

It goes without saying that the law should guarantee the absolute purity of all elections. The primary plan of nominating candidates for office is now a settled institution and, this being true, legislation should be promptly enacted which will throw around it the same safeguards that are designed to prevent irregularities in general elections, thus relieving it of the defects which now limit its efficiency and placing the results of its operation beyond just controversy and suspicion. In this connection, I think that, among other things, provision should be made for party registration. It seems clear that any expense incident to the primary plan in any of its features should be borne by the public to the extent necessary to enable men of small means to become candidates for office without making undue sacrifices, and thus afford the widest range in the selection of our officials.

I am heartily in favor of increased and increasing recognition of the sacred claims of Confederate soldiers and their widows.

It is within the province of the State to arrange for the compensation of those injured in hazardous occupations, and, therefore I advocate the adoption of a fair and reasonable workmen's compensation act. By such legislation we will be following the enlightened example of the countries and States where the interests of labor have received the most careful and liberal consideration.

WOMEN DEMAND EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Representatives of Movement tell Pathetic Stories of Experience.

CRY "ON TO WILSON."

No Set Addresses, But Speakers Utter What Comes From the Heart as Inspiration Seized Them.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The biggest delegation of working girls ever assembled in Washington for a similar purpose, held an open air meeting today in front of the Public Library, preparatory to marching to the White House, where an appeal was made to the President for woman's suffrage. "On to Wilson," was their battle cry.

The working girls represented ten of the principal working states of the Union. They are from every class of toilers who are forced to earn their daily bread in factories, shops, stores and the like. Also they are of all ages, from the small, overworked factory girl of Massachusetts, to the elder New York sweat shop workers hailing from New York.

They assembled in front of the Library today to tell the waiting crowds why they are in Washington and why they will appeal to President Wilson to lend his support to the proposed Federal Constitutional amendment for equal suffrage.

Many of the girls are paying first day for months from factories and shops in their home from which they walked the latter part of the week, taking with them their small savings to be used for transportation to Washington where they may plead their own cause.

Foremost among them was Mrs. Waxman, the mother of two children, who said that she had been walking the streets of New York for weeks in search of work but had been unable to obtain it. Mrs. Waxman's pathetic story brought tears to the eyes of many in the crowd, and at conclusion of her remarks had people crowded about her intent upon tendering assistance in some form.

The big labor mass meeting was called to order by Mrs. Glendower Evans, of Boston, who found facing her a multitude that extended from the steps of the library far out into the streets and that threatened to shut off the traffic to the south of Mt. Vernon square until reinforcements enabled the details of police on the ground to clear the way for street cars and the passage of other wheeled traffic.

There were no set speeches at the mass-meeting, and each speaker declared that it was her purpose to speak only from the heart as the Inspiration seized her. There was but one general topic, "The Working Woman's Need of the Ballot," and upon that subject the entire gathering was atturned, as almost every period was punctuated with rounds of applause.

Headed by Sol Minster's band, the line of march was from New York avenue to Pensylvania avenue, to the entrance of the White House grounds, and then to the office wing of the White House by way of the west gate.

The column was halted in front of the office building and a selected committee entered the building to wait upon the President. The two speakers for the women were limited to three minutes each.

Rev. Dr. R. A. Goodwin Ill.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 2.—Although restoratives were being used to prolong his life, the condition of the Rev. Dr. Robert A. Gooodwin, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, was regarded as hopeless yesterday afternoon and he was reported to be dying, the end being momentarily expected.

The Rev. Dr. Goodwin came here from Petersburg in 1893 to assume the assistant rectorship of St. John's church. He later became rector of the church. He did much charity work among the poor here until his health began to fail.

Has no Adjutant-General.

Richmond, Feb. 2.—The term of Adjutant-General W. W. Sale expired at 12 o'clock Saturday night. Under the law he goes out with the Governor by whom he was appointed, and as Governor Stuart has announced no appointments, the office today is without an official head. It would be a very simple matter, however, for the Governor to detail some officer of the militia to act as Adjutant-General should an emergency arise, so the fact that there is no officer in charge is of no great importance.

"DEAD ARE REALLY DEAD"

"Victory Over the Grave," Subject of Address at Surprise Last Night

There was another large crowd at the Surprise Theatre last night when the third of a series of lectures under the auspices of the International Bible Students' Association was delivered by Eliot Thomson, of Washington. He took for his subject: "Victory Over the Grave."

The speaker alleged that the dead are really dead, and that it is a mistake to suppose that they are more alive than ever—that like a bird liberated from its cage, the soul has taken its flight to the heavenly courts without waiting for the resurrection. He referred to Ecclesiastes 9:5: "The dead know not anything;" Psalm 146:4: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish;" Job 14:2; "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not; and they are brought low, but he perceiveth it not of them."

The lecturer pointed out what he believed to be the only hope of life as laid down in the Scriptures—the resurrection. "There shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." (Acts 24:15.) "If the dead rise not, then they which are fallen asleep in Christ are perished." (1 Cor. 15:16-18)—never to live again. They would be as though they had not been. (Obadiah 16.) The grave, according to the speaker, has for centuries been gradually swallowing up mankind, and death has been working in the human race to such an extent that the average length of life has been reduced to approximately 35 years. The source of this great River of Death was shown to lie in the fallen Adam, and the victory over the grave to lie in Christ, who took Adam's place, paying the penalty for his sin—death—which is legally to free Adam and his race. In God's appointed time, all will be released from the prison house of death, and be brought forth to life. "As all in Adam die, even so all in Christ shall be made alive."

The speaker said the Scriptures do not set forth the idea of a twenty-four hour Resurrection Day. So short a space of time would be quite inadequate for the wonderful work to be accomplished. The speaker declares that 1,000 years are appointed for the individual judging and resurrection of the whole world, and that the Apostle Peter clearly indicates this in 2 Peter 3:7,8 where, speaking of the Day of Judgment, he reminds us that it is to be a thousand-year Day. This entire day will be devoted to the awakening, instruction, and gradual resurrection, or restoration of the human race to the full life and perfection once enjoyed by Father Adam before he fell a victim to the process of dying!

Another lecture will be delivered at the Surprise Theatre next Sunday night.

THE ENABLING ACT.

Dr. James Cannon in Address at Danville Arraigns "Liquor Lobby."

Danville, Va., Feb. 2.—Declaring that the liquor lobbyb of Richmond would stop at nothing to prevent the passage of the enabling act, asserting that none of the members of the General Asembly had ever been bought, and that this was not due to the fact that the liquor interests were not plentifully supplied with money, Dr. James Cannon, Jr., president of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia, severely arraigned those who would impede the measure's passage, from the pulpit of the Mt. Vernon Methodist Church here last night. Dr. Cannon spoke to a church which was packed to its capacity, and his remarks were not infrequently broken by "amens" from the members of the congregation.

After referring to the liquor evil as the "paw of the lion," he urged the church to take action in helping to turn the State dry when the State-wide vote comes. He also asked for a liberal contribution to aid the league in its endeavors. He declared that only aboveboard methods would be pursued by the league, and that no votes would be bought. Dr. Cannon stated that he had never made the statement that the enabling act would pass, and declared that the indications are that it will go through on Wednesday.

AMERICANS HELPED JAPS.

Thoroughfare, Va., Feb. 2.—Lieut. Ralph Stover Keyser, connected with th American Embassy at Japan, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Keyser, here telling of the volcano eruption in that country.

He says that on December 15, without warning, an earthquake passed over the island. He was at his home and as the house was shaken he was compelled to leave it. On the street he found that the people were leaving their homes and going to the parks. There was a heavy storm and a roaring sound like thunder. He says the Americans from the embassy formed a relief party to help the Japanese and to quiet the crowds in the parks.

WILL CASE TO SUPREME COURT.

Alleged Heiress of Virginia Farmer Loses in First Suit.

Harrisonburg, Va., Feb. 2.—The Nicholas poison-will case now goes to the State Supreme Court. Judge Haas, in the Circuit Court, decided that the four Nicholas brothers have a right to examine the alleged will of their brother, George M. Nicholas, the poison victim, who, according to the alleged will, leaves more than $100,000 of his estate to Miss Ella McClendan, of St. Louis, Mo. The woman is an old sweetheart of Nicholas and once nursed the old Confederate soldier back to health, after a street car accident.

D. O. Dechert, the local representative of the St. Louis woman, will apply to the Supreme Court of Virginia for a writ of error in order that the alleged will may be kept secert, Judge Haas has suspended the order pending the appeal.

A peculiar phase of the case is that Commonwealth's Attorney Harrison also wants the will kept secret, as he believes that it will aid him in finding the person who poisoned the eccentric farmer in August, 1912.

The alleged will leaves $7,500 in cash to Miss McClendan. She also gets the farm on the Shenandoah river and the testator's riding horse. The rest of the estate is left to "my two brothers." As Nicholas left four brothers, the last phrase is puzzling.

Loses Both Legs.

Roanoke, Va., Feb. 2.—Otis Compton, fifteen years old, had his left leg and right foot cut off yesterday afternoon by a Norfolk and Western freight train at the street crossing on Jefferson street. Young Compton, with other boys, was jumping on and off the moving train when Otis Compton, slipped and fell beneath the wheels.

The lad was rushed to a local hospital. While his condition, according to hospital authorities is critical, it is not necessarily fatal. Amputation of both legs was necessary.

GOVERNOR STUART'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

The main features of Governor Henry C. Stuart's inaugural address delivered at his induction into the gubernatorial chair today will be found on the first page of the Gazette. From beginning to end his words show that he is a practical man and that the people of the State have made no mistake in calling him with a spontaneous voice and a unanimous vote to preside over the destinies of Virginia during the next four years.

The new governor's inaugural address does not smell of the lamp, nor is it a literary crazy quilt, abounding in scriptural, classical or historical references, but is couched in common sense statements and suggestions.

A large portion of his address concerns the mode of taxation calculated to produce more satisfactory conditions in Virginia.

Mr. Stuart calls attention to the fact that he was not the candidate of any clique or faction, and announces his purpose to perform his duties for the welfare of all citizens of the commonwealth. He also states that he has assumed the position of Governor without any platform.

The new governor is hailed by all with acclamations, not only by the great multitude who surrounded the state capitol and heard his inaugural address today, but by people throughout the Old Dominion all of whom wish him a prosperous administration, and that when he shall have stepped aside for his successor four years hence he can refer with pride to his administration as being among the brightest with which our State has been blessed.

CLEAR WEATHER GREETS GROUND HOG.

Superstition seems to antidate the flood, and that concerning the weather prognostications of the ground hog on the second of February has been traced far back in the classical age. Like the flooding of the world and the drowning of the antediluvians, the story may be told in the Bible with Noah and his family as the central figures, by the Greeks with Deucalion and Pyrrha as the only flesh saved, or by the Moabitish stone.

Substantially the history is the same.

The ancients did not regard the antics of any particular animal as indicate of meteorological conditions during the six weeks following the second of Febraury. People in the days of Romulus and Remus watched the movements of skunks, while the inhabitnats of what is now Germany dreaded clear weather on the second of February.

The rodent of America—that is the specimen in this section of the country—when it emerged from its winter quarters today saw its snadow, and, according to general opinion, we are to look for dismal weather during the next six weeks.

At the beginning of the fall many "weather prophets" shook their heads ominously and predicted a severe winter, alleging that squirrels were laying in large supplies of nuts. So far the winter has been comparatively mild.

Notwithstanding old sol shone brightly today, the winter of 1913-1914 may pass off as serenely as could have been wished, the ground hog's presage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Louis Allani was instantly killed another worker was fatally hurt, and a third seriously injured at the Big Spring Quarry, Berkeley county, W. Va., when a truck fell upon the trio.

ECHO OF RECENT DISASTER.

Passenger Swam Two Hours, Holding Wife's Hair in Teeth.

New York, Feb. 2.—Out of all the stories of suffering and courageous behavior which attended the sinking of the Old Dominon liner Monroe, off the Virginia coast, came today from the lips of Thomas R. Harrington, a survivor, one which stood out for its tragic pathos.

Harrington, who arrived in New York with a party of refugees from Norfolk, was too sick and shaken to talk immediately after his arrival, but this afternoon he told a simple story of how he had battled in the fog covered waters of the Atlantic to save his wife.

"I saved her, but she died afterwards," declared Harrington, who had swam for two hours holding his wife's hair in his teeth to keep her face above water.

"When we plunged into the water my wife was helpless from a broken arm. I grasped her and whispered to her that I would save her. I don't know how long I remained in the water, but I shall never forget those moments of suffering and danger. I floated upon my back holding my wife's head above the water the best I could. At intervals I shouted to attract the attention of lifeboats, but tried notr to waste my strength for I knew I would need it all. Soon a lifeboat came near and I called to it, but whether the occupants heard me or not I don't know. If they did hear my voice they ignored us.

"I comforted Margaret, my wife, by telling her that another boat would be along soon. She did not reply, but I know all her trust was in my strength.

"And then another boat came up. I called to the sailors, and when they came close one leaned over and said: 'Drop the woman, she is dead.' That angered me, and I cried out that she was not dead; that she had fainted in my arms.

"You will take us both aboard or you will not take either one of us,' I cried. I thought the boat was going to draw off and leave us.

"If you do not take her on board you will go to hell with the stamp of murder on your souls,' I shouted in my anguish. They lifted us both into the boat, but I still clung to Margaret, shielding her with my body and chafing her hands for warmth.

"It was a cold, nerve-shaking trip to the Nantucket. The poor girl died soon after being taken on board. Her life might have been saved by the quick application of stimulants, but on the Nantucket all was excitement and there were so many half-frozen, hysterical people, all clamoring for clothing and medicines, that I could get no attention. I carried Margaret into an unoccupied stateroom and did what I could, but she died while I sat by her side, holding her hands in mine.

"Afterward, a heartless fellow, entered as I sat sobbing by the berth, He saw that my wife was dead and advised that her body be thrown over board.

"That was more than I could stand. Leaping to my feet, I struck that man full in the face with all the strength of my right arm. He crumpled down upon the floor and I kicked him into the corridor."

A Neglected Cold Often Affects the Lungs

Many serious cases of Throat or Lung Trouble can be directly traced to a cough or cold which has been neglected. If you notice that a cough persists in clinging to you take warning. If you neglect trying to stop this supposed trivial trouble the throat and lungs later become affected. In many cases Eckman's Alterative has been the means of bringing permanent relief. Investigate this case:—

Saratoga, N. Y.

"Gentlemen: For five or six years I was troubled with cough and expectoration. I also had a high fever. My case was declared lung trouble by my physician. I was given Cod Liver Oil, Creosote and other medicines, all without benefit. At Christmas time, 1906, I was not expected to live. Calling Dr. R. H. McCarthy, he advised the use of Eckman's Alterative, which I took with excellent results. I have gained in weight. I go out in all weathers and have had no cough or cold whatever. I give these facts to encourage others to use Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit) JAS. W. KANALY.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

Overland Model 79

You Think They Are Different—But Are They?

Too many people are fooled or misled by taking bare automobile prices as a positive indication of the intrinsic value of a car. This is exactly the wrong way to go about. Because one article is priced higher than another it does not follow that this article has a greater value.

As a matter of fact there are any number of $1,200 cars which are not, in value, the equal of the $950 Overland.

For instance:

The $950 Overland has a wheel base of 114 inches.

The wheel base of the average $1,200 car is no longer than this—often shorter. So in this respect you get more for $950 than you do for $1,200.

The $950 Overland has a powerful 35 horse-power motor.

No $1,200 car has a larger motor than this. Here is equal value, and in most cases, more value for less money.

The $950 Overland tires are 33 inches x 4 inches—all around.

No $1,200 car has larger tires—Again—equal value—our price $250 less.

The $950 Overland has a complete set of electric lights—throughout—the same as on most $1,200 cars. Some out of date cars still cling to the obsolete gas lamps. In the first instance the $950 electrically lighted Overland is the equal value of the $1,200 car, and in the second instance has more value than the $1,200 (gas lamp) car. In either case our price is $250 less.

Next comes the matter of equipment. The $950 Overland is complete—a jeweled speedometer, top, curtains, boot, windshield, electric horn—everything complete. No $1,200 car has more complete or better equipment.

And so on, throughout the car. Point for point—specification for specification, the $950 Overland is, in every essential respect, the equal of any $1,200 car on the market.

So we warn you. Ignor the prices. Compare the actual facts first. Then compare the facts with the price and you get the intrinsic value.

There will be 50,000 Overland cars made this year—the largest production of its kind in the world. And every Overland purchaser will save at least $ per cent, and get a superior car.

See us Today and make Comparisons.

BLAMES THE MONROE.

Nantucket's Master Says Dominion Liner Was Out of Course.

Baltimore, Feb. 2.—Entire blame for the collision between the Merchants and Miners' steamship Nantucket and the steamer Monroe, of the Old Dominion Line, in which 41 persons lost their lives off Hog Island early Friday morning, was placed on Captain Johnson, of the Monroe, by Captain Osmyn Berry, of the Nantucket, who arrived in port early yesterday morning with his vessel badly battered.

This blame is placed upon Captain Johnson's shoulders in a statement made to officials of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company by Captain Berry yesterday morning.

In his description of the collision Captain Berry declares that if the Monroe had been in her proper course at the time of the accident and if the captain had obeyed the maritime rule of passing to the right instead of "starboard to starboard," as Captain Berry says he did, the collision would never have occurred.

He asserts that the Nantucket, in an endeavor to avoid the collision, had her helm "hard-a-ported" to keep to the right, but that the Monroe proceeded full-speed ahead and tried to cross the Nantucket's bow. She succeeded in getting partly past the Nantucket's stem, says Captain Berry, the Nantucket's stem striking the Monroe's starboard forward of the pilot house about at right angles.

In his statement Captain Berry describes the conditions immediately preceding and following the collision. He denies the charge that those rescued from the Monroe were refused proper attention on his ship, but states that everything possible for their comfort was done by everyone on board his ship.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2.—Divers made an unsuccessful effort to recover bodies from the sunken steamer Monroe yesterday despite a 30-mile westerly gale. The Monroe was located by the revenue cutter Onondaga at almost the same spot where she went down nafter being rammed by the Merchants and Miners' steamer Nantucket. Her exact position was given as 24 miles southwest, one-quarter of a mile south of Winter Quarter lightship. Fifteen feet of her mast is visible above the water. A red light was hung on it tonight by the Onondaga, and the tug I. J. Merritt is standing by ready to begin operations for the recovery of bodies and valuables from the sunken ship.

Declaring the sinking of his vessel was due to the negligence and carelessness of those in command of the steamer Nantucket, Captain E. E. Johnson, commanding the ill-fated steamer Monroe, has filed a libel against the former vessel He claims $1,000,000 damages. The libel was filed in the United States District Court at this point and served on officials of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company at Norfolk and Baltimore.

FINDS MISSING MAN IN POND.

Stroller Discovers Body of Possible Victim of Foul Play.

Franklinville, N. J., Feb. 2.—While walking along the road at the Porchtown dam Thursday morning, Charles Stevenson, found at the water's edge the body of Thomas Cattell, of this place, who had been missing since November 18, when he was last seen in company with a strange man and was said to have had $35.

Only one dollar was found in his pockets, but the authorities closely questioned Mrs. Cattell, who stated, that her husband had been in the habit of drinking at times, and she and the Coroner are of the opinion that Cattell was on his way home that night and fell down the little embankment into the pond.

Storms Are Expected.

Two wintry storms are expected to cross the country this week, according to the weather bureau.

"The first part of the week will be fair over the eastern center, and southern portions of the country, with moderate temperatures. There will be rain or snow by Tuesday in the great central valleys, and all during Tuesday and Wednesday the rains and snows will extend to the middle Atlantic States and New England.

"The second disturbance is due at the end of the week."

Within the past week a large lot of herring, as fine as those usually caught in midseason, were taken in nets in Nomini creek. A shad was caught in the river off Colonial Beach. The fish was a large roe and was in splendid condition.

Dear Sir:

I wish to offer you my hearty congratulations upon the really remarkable success of Steward's Business College. I know of no institution in Washington in the last twenty years that has made such wonderful strides in such a short space of time as your college has. It is possible, however, that when one thoroughly understands your methods that your phenomenal growth will not seem so remarkable, and I believe that as people become to understand it your future growth will be greater than your past and present.

Assuring you of my wishes that my prophecy will come true, I am
